Stop Reincarnating the Past and Realize Your Timeless True Self

Key Lesson: What is, always was; but what always was...need not remain as it is.

Special Writing: "Watching Time Run On Without Me"

Talk Takeaways

- The consciousness that creates separation cannot know immortality.
- "It is wise to seek immortality because time defeats all other ambitions." -- Vernon Howard
- Living from a part of yourself that passes itself off as the whole is the same as living in time.
- Thought creates the illusion of time along with the self that seeks for completion through possessions found in time.
- "Human beings perish because they are not able to join their beginning to their end."
- To be reborn is to enter into the greater Time that everyday time comes out of.

- Who we are now is the outcome of all that we have done to try to not be "here." The experience of where we are cannot be separated from what/who we are in that moment.
- "Yesterday, I was clever so I wanted to change the world. Today I am wise, so I am changing myself." -- Jalal al-Din Rumi
- Everything that is in time has come into being and is the expression of something that is timeless.
- An active disturbance is necessary in order to make known what is laying passively within you. There is no other way to become aware of it.
- "The way to life is to be awakened. Fools who sleep are already dead. But the master who remains awake lives forever." – Buddha
- What we presently call the "here and now" is a sense of self within a consciousness that reincarnates itself. That is not the Timeless "here and now."
- It is not the condition that repeats itself. What repeats itself is the consciousness that identifies with conditions.
- Self tries to find immortality through the things of time.
- The past is the consciousness that repeats itself in its attempt to become something real and everlasting.
- Anyone who tells you what to do with your life is stealing your life so that they can feel special.
- All judgment is the reincarnation of the past as it perceives the present moment and compares it to how things should be in its imagination.
