The Secret of Higher Spiritual Success

A flower in the process of blooming doesn't go looking for what it needs to fulfill the purpose of its existence; the very presence of its exposed petals and delicate fragrance attracts all it requires to complete itself...with no extra effort on its part, whatsoever.

Much in the same way, as we work to discover our true Self...opening ourselves to the revelations needed to realize its unseen Divine source, not only will we part ways with whatever no longer serves this highest of all purposes, but so will we also, effortlessly, draw to ourselves everything needed to fulfill it.
