Discover the True Purpose of Your Life and Find Perfect Peace

Key Lesson: When it comes to developing a living relationship with the Divine, good intentions cost nothing, which is why the road to hell is paved with useless coins. On the other hand, making conscious efforts comes with the cost of encountering the reality of our present level of being; of seeing what we are actually capable of doing, and what we are not. Enduring this revelation is the price of awakening, as well as the prelude to realizing a living relationship with the Divine.

Talk Takeaways

- To find the purpose of your life is to find peace, but not the kind of peace that the mind is seeking, which is conflict disguised as peace.
- Everything that we see in the visible world comes out of an unknown invisible world. The visible is always being renewed by the invisible.
- We are a captive of the consciousness that is always attempting to define what it sees.

- If beauty is in the eye of the beholder, and beauty is always becoming, then it is the eye of beholder itself that is always becoming.
- Human beings are the only creatures that have been given the capacity to be aware of their own consciousness.
- Just as we would not thirst for water unless water already existed, the longing to discover the true purpose of our lives is proof that a true purpose exists.
- "For as the body without spirit is dead, so faith without works is also dead." ~ New Testament
- Trying to build your own bridge to Heaven, using the tools given to you by thought, distracts you from the task of being the caretaker of the bridge that already exists.
- You cannot participate in what is changing through thought. You can only participate through being.
- Real faith is the agreement to allow the Divine to act on you, the difficult process of showing you where your ambition is at odds with your true purpose.
- Exercise: Let me allow all influences to show me that I'm being changed, that the perceiver is the changing itself.
- You will receive help and instruction along every step of the way to your true purpose if you love everything you are being given to see about yourself.
- When you are negative you may feel like you are alive, but when you are negative you are a part of something that is dying.
