

TO BE, TO SEE, OR NOT

Blessed are those who honor and reveal—by example—the uppermost path that leads to the perfection of the soul.

Fortunate are those who—upon seeing this example—are themselves moved to seek the Way, and who agree to the (interior) work of conscious suffering required for redemption.

Pity those poor souls who suspect—in one way or another—there are heavenly possibilities, but who refuse the struggle that leads to revelation, and the realization of true Self.

Yet, add no sorrow to those who—for whatever reason—deny the Divine, for their anguish is already beyond imagination.

— Guy Finley