

Re-Enter the Divine Flow of Life and Be Set Free

*A*ll of life is present, at once, in a timeless awareness; each and every creation—from a molecule of water, to the river that carries it to the sea—is connected in a seamless circulation of planetary and celestial energies...

...Which means that what we perceive as the “distance” between creatures—whether seemingly near, or far apart—is, at its root, an illusion: a misapprehension born of an imperfect measurement foisted on us by an incomplete nature that not only determines what we give our attention to...

...But where, for our unconscious identification with its considerations, we continue to mistake—and then experience—its fragmented, conflicted existence as being the same as our own.

— Guy Finley