

Real Life Is Now or Never

Now is an incorruptible, ceaseless awareness, inseparable from the celestial opposing forces of creation within which, and for which it appears. It is a divine level of awareness that reveals, without conflict, all seemingly opposing forces—the influence of what is active upon the passive body within and upon which it acts—as being totally complementary in the moment of their interaction.

It is at once the consciousness capable of realizing its own existence, as well as the creator of that consciousness as it is made self-aware.

— Guy Finley