

And the Darkness Comprehended It Not

The tree does not know the leaves, flowers, and fruits that spring from its branches providing shade, fragrance, and food; even so, do all of these things grow.

The sage does not know the insights that flow from the heart of his mind; even so, does wisdom appear as a Light that grows into the Way...for those who can see.

Nothing knows, yet intelligence flows.

— Guy Finley