A Revelation to Help You Transcend All Past, Present, and Future Troubles

Key Lesson #1: Our true nature is not discovered by acquiring new knowledge, but by awakening to what has always been present: the light of a living awareness, waiting to be awakened, and realized as being inseparable from one's True Self.

Key Lesson #2: Revelation is not a product of time, rather (it is) the sudden appearance of timelessness within us. Such moments don't provide intellectual answers; rather they reveal another order of intelligence inseparable from the awareness in which it is realized.

Key Lesson #3: There is no revelation apart from the consciousness in which it appears, and back into which it disappears; the only constant is awareness of creation itself...whatever form it may take, and in whatever scale of time.

Key Lesson #4: BE WHAT YOU ARE: Start by seeing that anything you add to the moment -- regardless how tempting, subtle, or deeply suffering the nature of such thought -- none are as they appear to be. To "take thought" for tomorrow is not just a distraction, but (it is) actually a veil that keeps you from realizing the Light of an indwelling, Timeless Self...that resides, rests and awaits you in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Talk Takeaways

- This world does not treasure the truth. The world treasures approval from others. It treasures appearances.
- There is another kind of development that is possible for you -- that the world knows nothing about -- in which it is possible for you to discover another order of being that already dwells within you.
- There is a part of you that already understands what you presently do not understand. Already waiting within you is an intelligence that already holds all possibilities.
- "To remember is the same mystery as to foretell." -- Ralph Waldo Emerson
- The purpose of true religion, of true schools, is to help us remember what we have forgotten.
- The questions we ask ourselves in fearful moments are always based in a nature that only knows how to react through fight or flight.
- "The soul answers never by words, but by the thing itself that is inquired after." -- Ralph Waldo Emerson
- The very nature that pursues answers to pain is the source of the pain.
- For us presently, time (tomorrow) seems to be the solution to the suffering born of confusion.
- If there is resistance to what you are experiencing, then you are separate from your own life, which means you are also separating yourself from the necessary revelation that is inherent within the experience.
- The real inner journey is into the light of awareness itself. There is nothing to do, only something to see.
- That which is timeless is always acting upon what is in time. Without awareness of that, all that we have is thought telling us what to be aware of.
- The purpose of the disturbance is to reveal and discover the nature within you that already understands the purpose of the disturbance. To avoid the disturbance is to miss the purpose of it. All disturbances are doorways to more understanding. The revelation of what you are looking for is not apart from the disturbance.

- When we stop imagining what we have to do in order to be free, then we see that the revelations we need to be free are always freely given.
- Not wanting a negative experience only serves to extend the negative experience you are having.
