Fulfill the Real Purpose of Your Life: Witness Without Judgment

Original Talk Date: July 27, 2016

Key Lesson: Spiritually speaking, as a required agreement essential in facilitating one's rebirth, one must learn what it means to be at peace with suffering the level of oneself that can never know the peace it seeks.

Talk Takeaways

- In us lives something that is opposed to all that is good. Until that fact is met, we can do nothing except give refuge to that part of us that is against our own higher possibilities.
- What is opposed to the good has more ways to hide itself than we presently understand. Our work is to bring that nature into our awareness.
- The fugitive in us lives everyday in the fear that it will be found out. There is never any rest. There is just the fear of the next condition that will expose what wants to remain hidden.
- "For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do." "So that within me a battle rages that of myself I am not able to win, but to which I must not concede." -- New Testament

- The lower nature likes to revisit resentments in order to rekindle the sensation of someone who has been hurt. It is incapable of considering others before itself. It seeks to establish the difference between itself and others, sowing the seeds of enmity.
- The very seeking of consolation strengthens the dark nature that is disturbed.
- Every act of judgment is proof to the judging nature that it is superior to what is being judged. Judgment is imagined separation.
- It is not in our power to change the fugitive nature, but it is in our power to suffer its appearance. Suffer the presence of the fugitive nature before you make others suffer for the pain it inflicts on you.
- Trying to prove that we are not the thing that we are ashamed of about ourselves, does nothing but strengthens that part of us.
- It is futile to try to hide from yourself. But something believes that it can hide through the lies that it tells.
- Any time that you justify the evil that you did not want to do, it is the evil that is doing the justifying, not you.
- You are controlled by what you don't want to know about yourself.
- Spiritual work is the willingness to know the things that you don't want to know.
- The wind of change will remove everything that is old, but only if we cease trying to bury it over and over again.
- There is nothing you can do to stop the events that are going to reveal what is inside of you.
- "I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." -- New Testament

- We are shown what we don't want to see about ourselves by what is Good.
- Of yourself you cannot free yourself from the level of yourself that causes you suffer, but you can understand the purpose of its presence.
- Don't do anything towards the old nature other than take the position of the witness, and suffer IT instead of allowing it to make you suffer.
