Step Out of the Shadow of the Past and into a New You

Key Lesson: Today I spent an hour knocking on the door of Time. No one answered. All that greeted me was silence. But, I'm pretty sure as I was standing there, waiting...That I saw a light come on inside. So I asked, "Is anyone there who might let me in?" Then it seemed came a voice, from where I cannot say. But...this is what I heard: "What makes you think you're on the outside?"

Talk Takeaways

- All relationships awaken us to aspects of our consciousness that we could not be aware of without those relationships.
- It is our discoveries that change us because they bring us into another order of reality that is already within, waiting to be discovered. What we really discover, in any kind of discovery, is ourselves.
- We would not have awareness of an event unless it were a reflection of our consciousness. The moment doesn't happen outside of us. It appears within our consciousness.
- Life is not a race to win. It is a school for our higher education.

- We must learn to welcome every moment. Every single moment is the revelation of our consciousness.
- Revelation in the truest meaning of the word is the realization that we are not apart from what is unfolding -- not outside of us -- but within us in relationship to the world around us.
- Everything that grows does so from the inside-out.
- We are intended to outgrow the consciousness that we are born into. What do we grow into when we outgrow an idea? A new understanding.
- Names and labels are limitations on the consciousness that is seeking understanding.
- Growth is a process of being released from what had formerly held you captive.
- We must choose what it is that we live for and from, otherwise the choice will be made for us by a consciousness with its own agenda.
- We are not the creators of eternal principles. What we want is to enter into a relationship with these principles that will always exist.
- It is not our place to balance what we see that is imbalanced. It is conflicted states that attempt to balance what is imbalanced, creating more conflict and imbalance. By law, when left alone, everything in nature ceaselessly balances what is imbalanced.
