The Consequence of Living Outside the Law

Key Lesson: Part 1: When fear creates morality, as well as the rules governing them, there is no longer morality...and it is fear that governs.

Part 2: That we should search only our own conscience for confirmation of what is good and true, this is the best definition of integrity; for that which is good and true is not social in nature, but spiritual in need and in deed.

Talk Takeaways

- Give people something to be against in the name of the greater good, and they will not notice that they are actually against the greater good.
- Integrity is relationship with a Conscience that does not belong to any one single individual.
- People fight over the meaning of love, not seeing the contradiction due to being so identified with their position.

- Have you ever noticed that no matter how many things you seem to reconcile, there is always something else just around the corner that will oppose you again?
- When everyone lives by different sets of rules, each person expecting others to live by their own, it is inevitable that there will be conflict.
- The path to higher success is not through affirmation. The path to real success is through the negation of the consciousness that is in the way of you receiving everything you that you need.
- "If I am not for myself, who will be for me? If I am only for myself, what am I? And if not now, when?" -- Hillel the Elder
- Real life is impersonal. That is the law. That is why we are all lawbreakers: because presently everything is personal.
- Love never considers itself first. It considers all at the same time.
- The world believes that the path to fix the problems that were created by laws that didn't work is to create more laws.
- The lower self lives on the negativity of others that do not follow the rules that it has set.
- The pain we experience over others not following our rules seems to prove that we know best how others should live their lives.
- Nothing that the mind can manifest will ever answer real spiritual need.
- We are not here to follow or imitate the mind's laws. We are here to be the embodiment of celestial laws that are already in place.
- "At the end of things, the blessed will say, 'We have never lived anywhere except in Heaven.' And the lost will say, 'We were always in Hell.' And both will speak truly." C. S. Lewis
