Realize the Divine Order of Life at Work in You and Watch Fear and Worry Disappear

First Key Lesson: Our first action - regardless of circumstance - must be to give our complete attention to all we are being given to see, and to be...accordingly. In this way, we not only come to discover there's a Divine order at work in our life but - even as we learn how to comply with it - we realize ourselves as part of its fearless perfection.

Second Key Lesson: Here is the real reason why this world must keep creating more and more laws to ensure that even simple moral, civil order remains in place: humanity itself is becoming (increasingly) disconnected from the original Higher Order of Being that is (the) Law itself.

Third Key Lesson: Humility is the one true order of all living things in creation, while the whole idea of "surrendering" is (largely) born out of our conflict with life and the pain of being out of order.

Talk Takeaways

- You keep looking to the order of this world to save you, hoping that some new law will fix everything that is wrong. The laws that you look to in order to rescue you are the very things that beats you down.

- A negative state happens when the laws that you cling to are broken by anyone or anything that doesn't agree with your law.
- Until you understand that order comes before laws, you will look to laws to reestablish order.
- Every reaction gives rise to a different 'I,' and each sense of 'I' has a different set of laws that others are obligated to follow.
- All true scripture describes an entirely different order of being that is already connected to the original Higher Order of Being that is the Law itself.
- Beauty is any moment when there is no longer separation between the observer and what is observed. In that state there is no need to create more laws.
- In nature all creatures are part of an order that all of the creatures obey.
- Humility is inherent in order. Awareness and alignment with Higher Order is fearlessness.
- The psychological walls that you build in order to keep threats outside of you, at the same time keeps you a captive within those same walls.
- Thinking, planning and judging are the same as doubling-down on the laws that were created in order to make sure that you are never disturbed.
- Negative reactions tell us that something is out of place, that there is a threat to the order we have created.
- You look to negative reactions to restore order. Suffering tells you what you need to do in order to stop suffering.
- Every moment proves that everything is already in its right place. It isn't life that is out of order.
- The revelation that something is out of order is not the same as you being asked to fix it.

- Exercise: What law are you serving at any given moment? Are you present to the experience of yourself, or are you looking to your own laws to protect you from revelation of yourself? Catch the temptation to go along with the laws that promise to protect you, but are actually a punishment.
- A new plan for a better and brighter tomorrow is the creation of a new law.
- Anyone who harms themselves is not only harming themselves, but is also hurting everyone else at the same time.
